Introduction

Dear pupil,

You will find hereby, three chapters:

Chapter One: What you should know/ Check that you know, followed by the key-answers.

Chapter Two: The BEM paper.

Chapter Three: BEM tests followed by the key-answers.

Chapter One summarizes the main points of 4AM syllabus and helps you check through activities whether you know the essentials. This part follows your English book, step by step. In your English book, the syllabus is covered in six units. So is the case in chapter One which gives you what you should know from Unit One to Unit Six and helps you check all this, unit by unit (Unit One, Unit Two, Unit Three, Unit Four, Unit Five, Unit Six.)

Chapter Two is about two main parts that test your English comprehension-competence, your language-mastery and your writing-competence.

Chapter Three contains 12 BEM Tests based on the modal of 2009 BEM English Paper.

NB: You will find the key-answers at the end of chapter one (Check that you know) and at the end of chapter three (key-solutions for the BEM Tests). We advise you to try your best to do all the activities before reading the answers.

The author: CHAID zahia P.E.S d'anglais

Chapter one: Check what you know

UNIT ONE: IT'S MY TREAT

What you should know

1. Use polite forms.
2. Write instructions.
3. Order a meal, describe a dish and give a recipe.
4. Distinguish between an opinion and a fact and draw conclusions.
5. Use tag-questions.
6. Use the imperative and sequencers.
7. Build adjectives by adding the suffix 'ed' to verbs.
8. Pronounce words containing the vowel sound (I) or (I:), words containing silent letters.
9. Use appropriate intonation in tag-questions.

Check that you know

Do the following activities to check that you know what is mentioned above:

Activity one

Complete the following dialogue. Use polite forms:

Donald (a waiter).....

Brian: « What would you advise me to eat? »

Donald:

Brian: « Let's have some roast beef and salad ».

Donald:

Barbara: I'd rather take some rice with chicken.

Donald:?

Brian: Yes, of course! Oranges and apples, please! We both like fruit!

(When you finish this activity, pay careful attention to what Brian and Barbara say:

They are ordering a meal. And you must know how to do that!)

Activity two

Turn the following statements (a recipe) into instructions. An example is given:

1. Salt is added. Add some salt.

2. Flour, eggs and sugar are mixed.

3. Some oil is incorporated.

4. Some water is poured before baking.

5. The dough is baked for half an hour.

6. The cake is served with milk and coffee.

Activity three

Complete the following conversation, using tag-questions:

Rafik: « Amirah helps her mother,.....? »

Mounir: « Yes, she does! »

Rafik: « Walid doesn't help at home,.....? »

Mounir: « Indeed, he doesn't! But he will! »

Rafik: «? »

Mounir: « He has promised,? »

Rafik: « So, he will keep his word,? ».

Mounir: « He said he would,? »

Activity four

Read the following passage. Pick up the verbs and form adjectives by adding the suffix « ed » to fill in table 1:

« Please! Before you mix carrots, chop them with a good knife. Then, cook three potatoes, peel them and add them to the mixture ».

Table 1

Verbs	Adjectives
Please	Pleased

Activity five

Read the following passage then discriminate between opinions and facts and complete table 2.

An example is given.

When my mother prepares a fish-soup, my sister refuses to eat it. I personally think it is delicious but my sister doesn't agree. My father always forces my sister to eat it because he considers it is good for health.

Table 2

Facts	Opinions
Mother prepares a fish-soup	I think it is delicious.

Activity Six

Check your pronunciation!

Read again the passage above (activity four). Then complete the following lists: 1, 2, 3:

Check that you know

Activity One

Read the following passage then say what each sentence expresses by filling the table below.

« May I drive your car, Dad? ». « Yes, you may but be careful! » It is always the case with my father: Every time he permits me to drive his car, he gives me the same kind of advice. I passed my driving- license, last year but I couldn't drive for several months. Now, I am able to control myself better, I feel more self-confident and can drive over long distances. However, I agree with my father: Drivers should be extremely careful because too many people get injured or even die in road-accidents.

Table

Statement	What it expresses
1	Giving advice.
2	Asking for permission.
3	Giving permission.
4	Inability
5	Agreement.

El Emir Abdelkader was born in Mascara in 1808. He organized the ‘Jihad’ against the French invaders. He conducted and led with firm hand fierce battles against the French army and its brutal soldiers. He signed the Macta and Tafna treaties in 1847. He was in jail in France before he was exiled to Syria. He defended the Christian community in Syria and even saved it. He wrote many books. He was a poet and a mystic too.

I think that El Emir Abdelkader courageously defended his country. He didn’t win the war and the French took the country because he didn’t have the appropriate means. But he did his duty towards his country and religion. In Syria, he protected the Christians; he was a tolerant man, a tremendous poet and one of the greatest Algerian leaders.

Activity Eight

Dear Younes,

I'm writing because I'm confronted to a rather big problem. My results at school are really bad and not to let my parents know, I tore and threw the letter the headmaster addressed to my father last week. In this letter, he informs him that my teachers have sent me out of school for a week. I got up early this morning and did as if I were going to school. I spent all the day outside, walking and wandering in the streets. It was very cold and I got frozen to death.

I really don't know what to do. Should I spend the whole week outside? Do you think I ought to tell my parents? I am eagerly waiting for an answer.

Friendly, Andy.

Activity Eight

Once upon a time, there was a princess who lived in a magnificent palace. She was eight years old and the prettiest girl one had ever seen. What she loved best was the garden where hundreds of birds of all kinds came and where all sorts of roses were flourishing. But one day, as the princess was running after a bird, she got lost in a thick forest. The king and his army searched everywhere for days but couldn't find her. A witch told the King that a wonderful bird had taken her to a place no human being could go. The King tried his best but never found his dearest daughter.

CHAPTER TWO: THE BEM EXAM PAPER

Nous te donnons ici la description de l'épreuve d'anglais et des conseils qui peuvent t'aider. Ils sont présentés en anglais, essaye de les lire. Si tu ne les comprends pas très bien, fais-toi aider.

The BEM English Paper is divided into two parts: Comprehension and written expression.

Comprehension

This part is meant to evaluate the candidate's competence in understanding a written text.

It contains two subdivisions: Reading Comprehension and Mastery of Language.

All the activities are closely related to the text.

a. The text

It is a text of about 10-12 lines. It is a rather simple one that an average grade pupil can understand. The candidate knows something or much of the theme which is in relation with the themes studied during the school-year.

b. The questions

In the first part, you will find questions on the text (what is the text about?) and on the lexis used in the text (what are the synonyms, opposites, definitions...?)

In the second part, Mastery of Language, the questions have a relation with the structure of the text, with the way the ideas have been expressed, conveyed and also with punctuation, capitalization and pronunciation.

2. Written Expression

In this part, your competence in producing a piece of writing is evaluated.

This part contains a topic followed by some hints to guide you and to provide you with the necessary devices.

COMPREHENSION

A. The Text

The first part of your English paper contains a text followed by comprehension questions and others in close relation with the vocabulary used.

Before answering the questions, you should read the text as attentively as possible. So we advise you to follow the steps given below:

Step One: Before reading the text:

- a. Have an overall look at the paper (how the text is presented).
- b. Read the title of the text if there is one; read also the references mentioned at the end of the text.
- c. Skim the text; pay attention to punctuation and capitalization.
- d. Read the first sentence of each paragraph.

Now, you must have identified if the text is a newspaper article, if it is a letter, an interview, a description, a narration..

Step Two: First reading of the text

Concentrate and read attentively to confirm your first understanding of the text. Determine exactly:

- The theme: What is the text about?

-The function of the text: Is it a description? Does it tell a story?'Does it inform you about anything or does it give any advice?

Now, you have a global understanding of the text.

Step Three: Second reading of the text:

Read the text again. Pay more careful attention to the text-organisation, to the lexis used, to pronouns, to the tenses

Now, you have a better, a more precise understanding of the text

B. The activities

A-Comprehension questions about the text

This part contains a series of questions which test, evaluate your comprehension. They deal with the contents of the text and the lexis used

Steps you should follow:

I. Pay careful attention to instructions.

Instructions often begin with the following verbs: Read.... Choose... Tick... Underline... Put a cross....

They also may begin with:

-An auxiliary: Is...Are...Were...Have...Has...Had...?...

-Modals: can - could - may - might - shall - will - should - would - must -

A question-word: who-what-where-when-which-whose...This question-word is very important. It guides you; it enables you to find the answer in the reading passage.

Examples: 'When' refers to the time, so you'll look for time; 'where' refers to a place so you'll find the place in the text; 'who' refers to a person so you must find the name of the person etc...

2. You must always refer to the text.

You've understood the questions, go to the text: If the question is about an expression or a word from the text, locate the item and read the sentence again.

If the question refers to a paragraph, read it again until you find the answer.

If the question is about the whole text, read it again, underline the parts that contain the answer.

3. Use correct English

Your answers must be expressed correctly. Make a first draft then copy your answers carefully on your exam- paper

Lexis

If you have understood the reading text, you'll find no difficulties in finding in the text, the right answer: synonyms or opposites to some words given.

MASTERY OF LANGUAGE

This part contains three kinds of activities: -Punctuation, capitalization/ -Grammar/ -Pronunciation.

A. Activities

Activity one

Punctuation, capitalization: You are asked here to provide punctuation and capital letters where necessary; the text given is very short (two sentences) and may contain proper nouns

Activity two

Grammar: you may have different kinds of activities, of instructions:

- Write the correct form of the verbs.
- Turn sentences from direct to indirect speech and vice-versa.
- Turn affirmative statements either to negative or interrogative statements or vice-versa-

Order the following words into coherent sentences

- Join the following pairs of sentences using "if".
- Join the following pairs of statements using a time-conjunction: when, as soon as or until.
- Join the following pairs using the relevant relative.

We advise you to pay careful attention to the instruction given. Read it until you understand it.

Be careful when you write the answers. Check that your answer matches the question.

Activity three

Pronunciation: The activity tests how much you know about the pronunciation of some words or some sentences. Much importance is given to the pronunciation of the final "s", to the silent letters, and the word-stress.

WRITTEN EXPRESSION

This part aims at testing your competence in the field of writing. It contains a topic, instructions and some hints that will help you write a coherent paragraph.

You should read and understand the topic, the instructions and the hints given. You should answer clearly the following question: What am I going to write about? After a second reading of the topic, the instructions and the hints, put it clear that you should write a piece of narrative, a description, a letter of advice or other, a piece of arguments, an opinion, a future activities-planning..

Pay attention to the form: Is it a paragraph, a dialogue?

Pay attention to grammar: Which tense are you going to use? The past if it is a narration. The present if it is a description. The future if it is a future activities - planning. The imperative if you have to give instructions. The interrogative form perhaps, if it is a dialogue - completion...

How am I going to write? I write a draft. I try to use all the hints given. I must write short and meaningful sentences. Before copying my production on my exam-paper, I read my draft carefully and check that my sentences are correct. I have to make sure my piece of writing is relevant to the topic given.-I check punctuation and capitalization.

While copying your written production, pay careful attention to its neat presentation::check punctuation and capitalization again and make your handwriting as legible as possible.

CHAPTER THREE: TESTS

TEST ONE: People and food

When I was younger, I refused to eat vegetables, except potatoes. But now, and thanks to my mother, I eat at least three vegetables a day.

I often go to the market which is near the house and which sells good-smelling artichokes, tomatoes, carrots, cucumbers, courgettes, peas, cauliflowers, green beans, salads and aubergines...My father always claims that Algerian fruit and vegetables are the best fruit and vegetables one may find in the whole world! We all agree with him, don't we? The fruit my father likes eating best are oranges; my mother's favourite ones are pears, my brother's and mine are fresh figs and water-melons.

I often help my mother at the kitchen. I wash vegetables, peel them, chop them.

I sometimes play the cook! It's quite amusing! I burnt the first cake I made and Rafik, my brother, laughed at me for days: "Dear little sister, dear Lina, you will never learn!» But his attitude didn't discourage me and now, I am able to cook delicious chorbas and to bake wonderful bread!

TEST FOUR: Human rights

In our 'so civilised modern world', 16,500 children die every day from malnutrition and famine. This is a revolting tragedy and an utter violation of a fundamental human right: The right to life. The situation, in poor countries, is aggravated by the inexistence of an efficient international solidarity. In fact, humanitarian organisations, like the UNICEF, should be given more means to intervene and relieve children's sufferings every day, everywhere. People must be offered sufficient food to eat, good basic medical care, education and a decent place to live. These, in fact, constitute the rights of any human being in any country. And as the most fundamental right is the right to life, all the children should be protected against the threats of misery and death.

(Adapted from Paving the way-2005)

TEST TEN: Internet

Many people have computers nowadays. Most of them are connected to Internet.

More and more people need Internet in their work, for their research and also for fun: a greater number of young people spend hours chatting on the net.

But what is Internet? A clear definition is hard to find because Internet experts cannot agree among themselves. However, the Internet users agree that it is a global network of thousands of linked computers that pass information.

The Internet has no government, no time, no place and no country. When your computer is connected to Internet, you can have any information about any subjects at any time; you may communicate with people living thousands and thousands of kilometers away.

Do you know what some scientists say about it? They claim that it is more impressive than the pyramids, more important than the industrial revolution.

For them, Internet has brought deeper changes than any other revolution.

TEST ELEVEN: Dear Marjorie,

I'm writing to you because I'm so unhappy and i need someone to talk to.

My life has changed a lot since I saw you. It has become hell since that woman took possession of our home. it was so nice to live there with my father. He used to say I was his best friend whereas now he hardly takes any notice of me. He spends his time laughing with Marilyn (what a name!) as if I didn't exist. Also, she made Dad buy me a dress and she wants me to wear it every day, even to go to school. Moreover, I must make my bed and tidy my room every morning before I go to school. Can you imagine that? She is on my back, all the time, saying that I must behave like a lady so that my father may be proud of me. Before she came, my father never cared about that! He was really proud of me, of my school-results! Now, he doesn't say a word about my efforts and my successful school-work! Last but not least, she prepares a heavy meal every night, and I'm sure she does it on purpose to make me grow fat and ugly.

I don't know what to do! Should I leave home'

Friendly, your desperate friend, Lucy

TEST TWELVE: The trial

Summer vacation started. Muff Potter's trial started. Tom and Huck remembered the night in the graveyard. They were afraid of Joe again.

« Did you talk about the night in the graveyard? » asked Tom.

« No, I didn't » , Huck answered. « Did you? »

« No ». Tom answered. « But I'm sorry about Muff Potter. He's always friendly to us. He didn't kill the doctor. I want to help him ».

Tom and Huck went to the trial and listened for two days. Tom didn't sleep well at night because he wanted to help Muff Potter.

On day three of the trial Tom talked. A man asked him, « Where were you on the night of June 17th? ». « I was in the graveyard », Tom answered ».

« Did you see any people there? » the man asked.

« Yes, Joe, the doctor and Muff Potter were there. They didn't see me because I was behind some big trees ».

« What did you see? » the man asked.

« Joe and the doctor talked angrily, « Tom answered. « Then Joe killed the doctor with his knife. Muff Potter didn't do it »

The people at the trial were very surprised. Joe quickly went out of the building. Tom and Huck were very afraid, Tom said « Now Joe knows about us. He can kill us, too ». Many people wanted to know about the boys' adventure in the graveyard. Tom liked talking about it. He was happy too, because he helped Muff Potter. A balanced diet for both children and adults is very important.

First, a balanced diet is needed by the body. It helps physical and brain sane development: When babies are well nourished, their physical and mental growth is normal. These children are rarely ill and fight diseases much better than underfed ones.

Also, a balanced diet will make girls and boys' schooling easier. When a pupil eats well, he can concentrate more and learn more rapidly.

AS for adults, sane food will protect them against some diseases and in a healthy body, thoughts are clean. Physical as well as intellectual abilities improve. Then, productivity gets higher. The better one eats, the better his life and perhaps the longer.

Dear Margaret,

I received your letter two days ago and it seems that you worry a lot about your weight. I think that you should stop complaining and start a real diet. You should impose on yourself drastic discipline.

First, I advise you to stop eating pastry and outdoors sandwiches. You must eat more vegetables. Why don't you take salads and fruit at lunch and a vegetables-soup for dinner? On the other hand, try to be busy all day long. If you are, you will not think about food at all! You will forget this oriental pastry and dishes you are fond of. I suggest you should practise some jogging every morning before going to school. You could, for example, go to school on foot, couldn't you?

"Dear Margaret, try also to cheer up! If you are depressed, you'll need more chocolates and you will not lose any weight! According to me, you are a very nice, very clever girl and you must not worry so much about these three or four kilos!

Kisses from a friend who loves you as you are, Tracy

Dear Lucy,

Your letter received yesterday made me so sorry. The most important thing is that you shouldn't leave home. You are still too young and you have no place to go to. You must concentrate on your studies and do your best to keep the same brilliant level.

Your father has the right to marry and he certainly still cares about you. You should discuss with him. For example, tell him that you don't like the dress he bought and the meals Marilyn prepares. You must ask for more freedom of thought. Explain that you are old enough to choose. Try to forget Marilyn and say your word! You'll certainly feel much better! As you are such a good pupil, write every day on your diary all your feelings and all the facts that worry you. This will help you a lot and will be a sort of therapy.

Love, Marjorie

PART TWO

Written Expression:

Four years ago, I read a very nice story .It recounted the life of a poor man called Mansur who dreamt of becoming rich and happy.

He decided one day to embark on a boat and sail around the world to achieve his dream .After several months, the captain of the boat died. The crew decided that Mansur would become the new skipper. A month later, they arrived to a country nobody had seen before. Its inhabitants were richly and beautifully dressed. Their houses looked like palaces; they were sumptuous! People were organizing a wedding for their king's daughter, Jasmine. And...They were waiting for the happy husband. A fairy had told them that a captain would come soon, that his name would be Mansur and that he would marry the princess! As soon as Mansur arrived, two strong men caught him, took him to the bath where they washed and dressed him. Then, they introduced him to the king who ordered the marriage. Mansur partly achieved his dream: He became very rich but he couldn't be happy because he was forced to marry a woman he didn't love. Last but not least, the king and his soldiers never allowed him to return to his native land.
